Victoria gets World final!

Ray Richards

By LAURIE SCHWAB

THE final of the 1981 FIFA world youth tournament for the Coca Cola Cup will almost certainly be played in Melbourne.

Matches in the series between the 16 finalists will be spread between Newcastle, Canberra, Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide and Brisbane.

The tournament will last for about 19 days and the ideal time would be in May.

Australia was decided upon as the venue for the 1981 finals during discussions between Australian Soccer Federation and FIFA officials in Sydney on Monday.

Australia failed to qualify for the finals. Paraguay won the remaining vacancy (see separate story).

Australia was under close consideration two years ago as host nation for this year's finals, but when Japan was chosen instead. FIFA indicchosen instead, FIFA indic-ated tht Australia would be the front-runner for the 1981 tournament.

As host nation, the Australian team will auto-matically qualify for the 1981 finals.

He is one of Australia's longest-serving inter-nationals, having played in the 1973-74 World Cup, on the 1967 Asian tour, the 1970 world tour and the 1972 Asian tour.

Richards dropped out of Marconi's team due to a per-sonal clash with the then coach Rale Rasic, last year.

However, Marconi's new coach Les Scheinflug announced only last week that he hoped soon to have Richards back in the team, so noone had expected his transfer to APIA.

Richards lost two stone after a recent operation to his jaw, and says it will take him only two or three weeks to reach peak fitness.

He said he had had no real intention of playing this sea-son but decided to get back into action as Scheinflug's re-

But when Scheinflug went to the committee, it voted that Richards should not come back "at the moment."

"In other words, they wanted me to hang around waiting to see how the team fared." Richards said.

"After 10 years with Marconi, it is hard to sever ties. I still have lots of friends there, but there are a few men in high places who are against me. Had it not been for one committee member in particular, I may have stayed with the club."

"Jim Adam (APIA's coach) has a really strong squad, so it will be hard for me to break into the team. They've got Peter Stone in midfield, as well as Brisan O'-Donnell who I predict will be a sensation this year. There's also Eric Curruthers who's an excellent player."

George Cross, once the pride of Australian soccer, does not have a home ground for the 1979 season.

The 1964 Australian Cup winner has had its application for continued use of Olympic Park refused by the ground's committee of management. Successful applicants are Fitzroy and Footscray for the main stadium and Juventus and Essendon-Croatia for the greyhound track.

Sydney City takes soccer to country

Sydney City plans to take its PSL squad to the country centres of NSW during the 1979

City will play a series of matches in the country when time permits, be that during the planned mid season break or at the end of the season. The club has airedy accepted invitations to play skhibition matches in Coffs Harbour on the NSW coast and at Picton, 50 miles south of Syd-

Tilsed, the former Arsenal and Canberra City star is currently manager/coach of the ambitious Coffs Harbour feam which will play in the Northern NSW State League proposed for next year.

Tilsed, -in his position as fulltime coach of Coffs, is involved heavily in establishing the code in the prosperous Northern NSW city.

Many people have inquired about City's new emblem which will be worn on matchday shirts, team uniforms and other club promotions.

The design for the badge is similar to the coat of arms of the City of Sydney with the addition of the "Harbour Bridge" in the top half of the design and the words Sydney City on the bottom half.

The symbol denotes the fact that Sydney is a marine city and the symbol has the blessing of the club's ardent fan and supporter, the Lord Mayor of Sydney, Alderman Nelson Meers.

The Lord Mayor will be the club's special guest at its first home game of the season when Sydney city meets Ad-elaide City on Sunday March 18 at Wentworth Park.

Victoria to accept chal-lenges from clubs," Mr Wallace said.

By LAURIE SCHWAB

There are two possible solutions to the Victorian problem of players moving back and forth between PSL and Victorian Fed-

Bratton towns.

They are:

1. A PSL permit system. The PSL could allow promising Federation players to play in their club's PSL side under a special permit. At the moment, the PSL requires that all players in the team be fully registered with the league.

2. Dual registration. The senior players of a PSL club could be asked by the club to sign not only PSL registration forms, but also State Federation forms, enabling the players to compete in both competitions. The VSF would however, restrict its Federation teams to only two or three such players at the players to the players the players to the players th

To use a Federation player in the PSI, alde, the club had to have him registered with the PSI, meening he needed a clearance from the Federation.

HELLAS JOINS TWO SQUADS

South Melbourne Hellas' Second Division team will have closer ties with the club's national league X1 after major changes implemented by Manager Dave Maclaren

The two sides will train together, and the club hopes PSL squad members who miss a place in the first 14 will play in the Second Division side.

The changes would give more flexibility and make it possible for a player good enough to progress through the ranks at South Melbourne. Since 1977, the start of the national league, this had not been possible.

"Last season and the year before that," said Maclaren the national league and Second Divison teams."

Maclaren said the situation became a problem when a lating who came into the last first team from the second team, couldn't return to the lower league and spent the remainder of the year on the bench for the PSL side.

George Cross threw everyone into attack in a late bid to equalise but falled to capitalise on its opportunities and, in the final analysis, lost to a better team.

Brian Thom. in his first game since his $2500 transfer from Ringwood City, and Ray Mizzi, provided plenty of aggression in George Cross attack, but they were eclipsed at the other end by Steve Carr and David Perkins, backed up by hard-working player-coach Billy Vojtek.

Centre back John Cain also provided a lot of drive, coming out of defence to get involved in attacking movements, and even shooting at goal.

There were also disappointments in the Ajax team—notably Willie Vassallo who perhaps should not have played so soon after injury—but on the whole, it played more controlled soccer than George Cross did.

Perkins had the first good chance of the game, breaking away on a through ball but miss-ing with his shot.

Mick Klarin, the former Fitz-roy reserves player having his first match for Ajax, had a defensive header intercepted by Thom who blaster over the bar, and then Voj-tek. from an Andy Segi cross, had a header saved low by Svez Matsaon.

Just after half time, a shot by Perkins hit Norm Maitland on the goal line, and then Klarin pro-vented a certain goal by robbing Jim Paparas of the ball on the edge of the area, with goal-keeper Lou Denys out of posi-tion.

The winning goal came in the 55th minute. Billy Wilkinson and Matsson had a major misunderstanding near the penalty spot, the ball rolled free to Perkins, and he slammed it into the empty figt.

In George Cross determined fight-back, Tony Scicluna hit the side netting in a move started by Wilkinson and a hook shot by Mizzi hit the bar after being de-

But Frankston will be hoping to get Vince Bannon forward more. The right flank in attack is left open for his overlaps from full back but against Albion the State representative made only one effective dash forward.

Overall, Frankston gave a satis-factory performance. The team's midfielders were far more mobile than in the previous Ampol Cup game against Slavia and worked more closely to allow short-pass-ing build-ups.

Bannon and Webster were getting into forward positions while Abe Brown did a lot of fet-ching and supporting without looking spectacular.

Slavia lost star defender John Yzendoorn in the 27th minute when he was sent off for swearing at referee Dennis Voutsinas.

But this had little bearing on the result. Even with Yzendoom on the field, Slavia had struggled. The work rate of the Croatia side was amazing. It attacked in numbers and applied pressure as soon as possession was lost.

Matching Croatia in this de-partment will be hard for any State League team, particularly when coach Brian Edgley main-tains his players will be 30% fitter by the final stages of the Ampoli Cup.

Slavia had a total breakdown in its pattern of play. The side's mid-fielders normally take short passes from defenders, then feed target men Steve Aldridge and Jim Paton.

But after 15 minutes, Slavia was by-passing its midfield and hitting long balls forward. Peton and Aldridge were swamped by Croatia players and even when they were able to control the ball, had no support or space to allow the ball to be laid off.

Croatia concentrated on a short-passing game once it had the ball forward. A feature was the way the midfielders were running into deep forward positions, often getting past their own forward line.

Most State League midfielders are too rigid in their attitude towards going forward. They will attack but always stay behind their forwards.

Croatia should have scored after two minutes. A sweeping move involving Steve Short, Tommy Cumming and Alen Kerr ended with Kerr going down the line and swinging over a

Soon after Gilder opened the scoring with a well-placed shot on the turn after a neat pass from Howard Andrews.

Train, along with full back Frank Thompson, were Slavia's best, purely on effort and guts. Glider hit a shot on the turn over the bar as Croatia peppered the Slavia goal.

Billy Brindle, a former captain of Everton reserves, made his debut for Slavia. The stocky midfielder showed in flashes he likes spraying the ball around but may have to lose some weight.

Paul Cooke, who gave away the ball on numerous occasions in the first half, was taken off at the interval and replaced by Brian Turk. Tuft played at centre half and in another change, Thompson was given the task of marking Cumming after the explosive winger had given Milek Shuttleworth the Slavis full back, a bath.

But Croatia didn't falter and should have scored four more goals instead of one.

It came when Cumming received the ball after Slavia had once again lost possession. It was two against three, but instead of using his support - Gilder - Cumming slotted the ball home.

Slavia's first shot at goal came in the 50th minute when Paton miscued a volley from a Jim Wil-Ilams corner Yakka Banovic made an easy save. — KYLE PAT-TERSON.

More than five years ago a man came to Australian soccer

That man is Eric Worthington who, as national director of coaching, was charged with the responsibility of upgrading the standard of our coaching irses under the national coaching scheme

'Chico' $83.99

So how has he fared? After five years can he be termed a success or a failure? Let's look at the statistics. After arriving in Australia in April 1973 Eric Worthington April 1973 Eric Wortnington made a comprehensive study of coaching in each State, lasting more than 12 months. From the results of that study he laid down the national coaching scheme which got off the ground in January, 1975.

Directors of coaching were appointed to various States with the initial objective of producing 10,000 certificated coaches in thefirstive years. The defection of national coach Brian Green and a change of Federal government which resulted in a cutback of money to sporting

You must live in for nine full days and nights of intensive practical and theoretical work before you can be tested for this award. As one who has taken his senior award overseas and has since been a staff coach on senior courses here. I can say that the overall instruction is almost comparable with that in England. One of the gripes by professionals in recent year against attending coaching courses in Australia is that they will learn nothing new. ## BANOVIC: best in Australia?

By LAURIE SCHWAB

The similarities between Yakka Banovic and Ron Corry are significant. Like Corry, Banovic has rapier-sharp reflexes and the agility of a cat. Like Corry, Banovic is a fitness fanatic. Like Corry, Banovic is expert at saving penalties.

Corry played for Sydney Croatia. Banovic plays for Essendon

Corry was goalkeeper of the national team during the 1969 and 1973 World Cup qualifying series, so if their careers continue to run parallel, Banovic will play for Australia in the World Cup series of 1981.

The more I watch him in action, the more Banovic convinces me that he is close to being the best goalkeeper in Australia. At 22 there are many years left in which to improve even further, and he even has an advantage over Corry — he's taller.

he's taller

His senior representative career started in South Australia when he played for that State against Red Star Belgrade and Victoria in 1977.
It continued two weeks ago when he kept goal for Victoria in its 0-1 loss to Wisla Krakow. He thus has something in common with Jack Reilly as well, for Reilly, also represented two States—
Victoria and NSW.

When Victorian coach Len McKendry was trying to decide between Banovic and Lau-ments on the eve of the match against Wals Krakow, he told both of them that it was like trying to choose between Ray Clemence and Peter Shilton.

The family is naturalised, meaning Banovic eligible to play for Australia.

At achoel in Whysile, Banovic was an all-round sportsman. He represented the Spencer Gulf area at Table tennis and represented South Australia at high school level in interattrate school champlonships, finishing third in javelin and discus but having to withdraw from the 1500 metres due to injury.

The primary school he attended played Australian Rules football but no soccer, so Banovic developed into a brilliant ruck rover and captained the school team in representative matches in Adelaide.

So well did Banovic play, that the Adelaide club signed him on the spot.

To say that the Adelaide club was impressed by the young goalkeeper would be an understatement, as it started flying him from Whysila and back every weekend, so he could continue to attand his play and the season but in 1973 he was Croatia's No. 1 goalkeeper and did not miss a game. What went wrong for Sydney City?
Coach Gerry Cheldi analysed that the fault lay with a half-time reshuffle, which saw Terry Smith replaced by young Brazilian import Marcos Silva.

Barnes was switched to the pivot of attack — and almost immediately the Blues missed his presence in mid-of things in the 70th minute.

Almost immediately things improved and Histon Silva went very close with a scorching shot in the 80th but the woodwork foiled him.

Avala refused to be satisfied with one point, and both Jancek and Kodor had chances in the next two minutes to wrap the game up. It wasn't all gloom for City.

Steve O'Connor played an other magnificent game in the defence.

The strapping youngster is performing with such flair, confidence and power this year that he seems very likely to be among the first picked for Gutendorf's 'Mark '79' Socceroos.

It was also a pleasure to see Alan Kershaw's first half performance; he is ob-half performance he is obviously determined to capitalise on Kevin Mullen's enforced absence through injury.

Two of the club's new Brazilians made their debut, both of them—as expected—performing quietly in their new environment.

However, tall, elegant full-back Mozart Fonseca already showed glimpses of clever skills and imagination, but tiny, Marcos Silva had a less successful beginning.

frequently attacking. Bruno raced through to accept a brilliant through ball by Vidajic, then shot hard from 15 meters, but Fraser made a good save.

With the game seemingly deteriorating, Croatis struck again. It was in the 64th minute. Marion Kovacic centred from the right touchline. Abonyi and Grosse challenged for a ball, but went over their heads to the feet of young Wayne Cootes, who fired a first time drive past help-less St George keeper.

St George players played well below their ability and certainly idin't deserve to win. But they must be kicking themselves for letting this one slip away, as the loss against Crostia put them against Sydney Olympic instead of Yugal.

O'Connor, Hensman and Bren-dan Grosse played well for St George while the rest failed mis-erably. For Croatia, Cagali, Kovac-ic and Torn BAsic were out-standing while Abonyi played well in patches — ALEX VESIC.

A miss by Alan in the first minute was followed by another opportunity that fell to Terry Jones in the 13th.

The last one came after a great run by Parker, who beat no less than three defenders before finding Jones at the far post. Jones quickly headed the ball back for Alan, who wasted no time in heading towards goal from only five metres out but straight at the palkeeper!

Two minutes later, the Granville defence was beaten once more, but the final shot year farrugin went over the bar from close range. The speedy Parker was on the spot again. He managed to beat Selfridge, then sent a perfect cross, which Barry Hoare palmed to the feet of an unmarked Farrugia. With the goal wide open, Farrugia blasted it well over the bar.

The last chance of the first half fell to Jones. For once the Granville's defence trapidin't work and Jones picked up a through pass to race into the area and face Hoare, but his shot rebounded off the advancing keeper's body.

Sydney Olympic toyed with Marrickville for most of the game then in a scoring burst of 12 minutes put five goals past the bewildered Evans to score the second biggest win of this year's Ampol Cup.

Clive Eaton started the "slide" minute of the first half. Twenty-five metres away from the line Eaton decided to shoot for goal and it turned out to be the best goal of the game. The ball rocketted past Evans into the roof of the net and Olympic was on its way.

Alec Jamieson's well measured cross in the 29th minute found Dave McIntosh at the far post and the tall striker headed brilliantly past Evans for Olympics second goal.

With Olympic in full control of the game, and only Ziros and Kable offering token resistance, it was only a matter of time before Olympic scored again.

Alan Ainstie drove from 25 metres and Evans appeared to have it covered going for the left hand corner. However, the ball struck the unfortunate Wignell and changed its course to land in the right hand corner and give Olympic its third goal.

With 70 minutes gone, with the score 5-0. Marrickville's defence failed to clear and the ball ran to G. Allan, who drove a first time shot towards goal. Evans managed to touch the ball but it rolled over the line. Michael has the ball into the net. but I think that the ball was already over the line when McIntosh nucled it, and in my book the goal goes to the fullback.

In the 75th minute a low drive by Alec Jamieson from well distaide the box beat Evans to finish the scoring list for the day. In the last 15 minutes Olympic could have added another goal or two, but decided to have a bit of fun running the ball around instead. It was a pleasent change from Olympic's recent performances and certainly a form that could worry the St George team in the quarter finals. — ALEX VESIC

Let's not make excuses

The reasons given for the Australian under 19 team's failure are that everyone and everything was against the side. From experience, I know every Australan team has faced similar problems on overseas tours.

It's something the young

Any Australian team which tours has a job to do. All the sides have faced problems and many have overcome thom. Making excuses just isn't good enough.

e Next week I will name the best Australia XI in my era and discuss the styles of two national coaches I have played under — Rale Resic and Joe Vinsits.

I will also tell why I just soccer in 1970 to set up a business that made world headlines four years later.

They gave me a trophy for my knock-out punch My greatest disappointment in international soccer was that I won only 49 caps for Australia.

I desperately wanted to reach the half century mark but that's the way things go.

My first appearance for Australia was in 1987 against New Zaaland. The game was part of a tournament in Vietnam involving several nations.

I came on as a substitute in the second half for Frank Micla after our coach "Uncle Joe Vlastis decided I was the man to upset the New Zasiand forwards who were causing a deal of trouble to the Australian defence.

The feeling was unbelievable as I ran onto the pitch. Fortunately my mental approach was good and I settled down quickly.
Australia won the game 4-2 on a rain-soaked pitch, and I was glad to get that first international under my belt. Two years sarlier I thought I would never be picked to represent Australia. In 1985 I missed selection to Australia a World Cup squed for qualifying games in Cambodia. I had been tedd unofficially I was in the squae but when the four party was amounced. But I'm not the only player to miss out on selection to the Austrialian team after being told he was a certainty...

However, after my debut against New Zealand, I retained my place for the remainder of the tournament. Australia won the final, defeating South Korea 3-0. I was 24 years old at the time.

My first appearance in the green and gold shirt was certainly memorable, but my last game, in West Borlin 1974, was the most rewarding and satisfying.

As for my debut, the pitch was rain-soaked and although Australia could manage only a 0-0 draw with Chile, we were a couple of goals better than our opponents.

came to puturing the deal mix-buring my international câroer, I experienced riots, tours to all corners of the world, triumphs and heart-breaking failure. But as far as I'm concerned, the worst thing was the attitude of Austral-ian crowds to the national team. He was not impressed by Wisla's factics of playing possession soccer late in the game during which they made little strengt to strengthen their grip.

"I congratulate you on your moral victory but this was a most unsatisfactory performance by my team," was his only comment.

Wisle started ominously when midfielder leszek Lipks tore through SA's feeble defence and offortbessly cracked the ball past 'keeper Martyn Crook after just 55 seconds.

But Wisla came roaring back and Crook had to make the first of several brillient saves when he raced off his goal line to block a shot from winger Michael Wrobal.

"I prefer playing as a deep-lying forward, so I get the chance to score goals, as well as getting stuck in the middle of the park."

That's Barnes' way, an honest talker who dosan't dodge any questions off the field, and a dynamic player who can cut loose and create havor.

Many soccar writers hold the opinion Barnes would be a greatur asset to the Australian toam as a forward. He played in midfield during Australia's 1977 Word Cup preliminary matches and holds down a similar position at Sydney City.

"When I was young and fast," joked Murray, "I was a right winger. I switched to midfield around 1974 and I preferred to stay in that position.

"Rudi Gutendorf played me as a forward during a trial game before he left for South America with the under 19 team, so maybe he thinks I'm botter suited to playing up front. It would be OK, if he wented me to play as a striker. I can adjust my style fairly easily."

Barnes had a below average season in 1978 but there are a number of reasons for this.

"Early in 1978 my father died," remembers Barnes, "and that had an influence on my soccer. On top of that, I started a university course and became a full-time studient."

"I hadn't studied since I did my HSC in 1971, so going back to school was trange. It added a bit more straine of the

"I hadn't studied since I did my HSC in 1971, so going back to school was strange, It added a bit more strain and I'm sure my soccer suffered."

nine years ago when he joined Hakosh (Sydney city's previous name) as a 16-year-old.

"I played with Kuringai as a junior," said Murray, "and was selected in a number of youth representative teams." I was in the under 16 state team, which was coached by Billy Stoovla. Billy was also third grade coach at Hakosh, and he asked me to come down to the club." But Hakosh didn't know how lucky it was to get Barnes.

Barnes returned and within two seasons had played first team for Hakosh in the NSW State League.

He made his first appearance as a substitute at the age of 17 and after that tottered on the verge of a regular first team place.

The coach at the time was Dave Maclaren, now manager of South Melbourna Hellas.

"I had no gripes with Maclaren," said Barnes, "but there were a few players in the team who didn't mind one bit when he left. Then again, Maclaren is still very good friends with other players.

"Maclaren and Chaldi have different attitudes towards players. Gerry respects the players and our private lives. He tries to get an even balance so our private life isn't upset.

"Dave tended to be friends with some players but didn't want to have much to do with the rest. He treated them as soccer players will be interested to hear Bernst only a fine of the players of linemy Shouldes.

Readers will be interested to hear Barnes' opinion of Jimmy Shoulder.
"Jim was a good coach," he said, "but he didn't have enough experience at handling people. The national side was only his second or third team."
Expect big things from Barnes, the bronzed Aussie, this season.

Spotlight on Victorian State League coaches

Edgley: he'll take

By KYLE PATTERSON

When Essendon Croatia coach Brian Edgley talks of discipline and exceptional fitthe subject isn't likely to be Kung Fu or the latest guru-inspired form of meditation.

Edgley is a strict disciplinarian and believes soccer, even at partitime level, requires total devotion. "Discipline is the first thing that must be established in a team," he said. "Players must po by the rules set down by the coach. "They must be disciplined to play set of the players must posses to the players must posses to the players must be disciplined to play set of 100% to their club." "And if players astep out of time, they can expect to get hit where it hurts — in the pocket. Fines on players are a part of any top club that wants to stay strong." It was Edgley's reputation of

It was Edgley's reputation of being a strong coach which interested Essendon Croatia in the former Moorcolbark, Doveton and South Melbourne boss.

Offer from Auburn

A letter received this week (which we are print-ing in full) prompts me to ask readers in each State to let us have some news from each particular State.

Send your letters direct to e. L. G. Jensen, 13 Magit venue, Mulgrave, 3170. Drop me a line about the juniors in your area. Here then is the letter from Auburn United Soccer Club...

"I am writing on behalf of my club to enquire whether there is a junior soccer club in Melbourne who would be interested in engaging with our club in an annual recipro-cal visit during the August — September school holidays,

What I foresee is that we would send two under 16 teams to Melbourne each year in exchange for two teams from a Melbourne club who would come to Sydney the following week. They could, but would not necesarily be under 16.

A player finishes his junior days with our club at 18 and a visit of this kind would be aftiting climax to his junior career with us.

It would be especially gratifying if we could find a club who would be able to join with us in promotting a venue which we have in mind for 1980. We plan to conduct a "Sydney under 14 knock-out competition" under flood-linker Wich have a creek to be a "Sydney under 14 knock-out competition" under flood-lights. We have access to two floodlit grounds and would take entries from junior clubs all over Sydney. The winner would play a series of five Tests against the winner of a similar series in Melbourne. Some of the games could be played in Sydney and some in Melbourne.

We would try to get the games played as early matches to Philips League matches. We have a sponsor matches. We have a sponsor ready to finance the series and we feel fairly sure that with proper publicity it would catch on and would be entire-ly feasible.

MONEY MAGIC

with Michael Morley

Over the past three weeks I've recom-mended some planned entries using 14, 15 and 16 selections.

There are pools punters who want to cover more match-es, and it is with them in mind that I dedicate this week's es, and it is with them in mind that I dedicate this week's article.

As I previously mentioned, the more games we cover, the better are our chances of success, providing that we arrange our selections into a planned entry.

If we cover up to 16 matches we can make a presty tight plan for a reasonable outlay. Once we go beyond that number of selections — the cost to maintain a good cover will increase sharply.

My plan for this week uses 22 matches, and in view of this large number of selections — I have attempted to provide a fair cover for a moderate investment.

The plan will require 12 entries of system 11 and at 50 cents an entry the bet will cost $6.00. This will involve filling in three of the special entry forms for system 11, where four entries can be made on each form.

There are many ways in which 22 matches can be arranged into a planned entry. My 12 entries from 22 and not using any two matches in consecutive order. For the benefit of the readers who like to see the patterns of numbers — I have made an example list of entries for this type of plan — using match. Nos. 1-22. They are as follows:

re as follows: 3 5 7 9 11 13 15 17 19 22 3 5 7 9 11 13 15 17 19 21 3 5 7 9 11 13 15 17 19 21 3 5 7 9 11 13 15 17 20 22 3 5 7 9 11 13 15 18 20 22 3 5 7 9 11 13 15 18 20 22 3 5 7 9 11 14 16 18 20 22 3 5 7 9 12 14 16 18 20 22 3 5 7 9 12 14 16 18 20 22 3 5 8 10 12 14 16 18 20 22 3 6 8 10 12 14 16 18 20 22 4 6 8 10 12 14 16 18 20 22 4 6 8 10 12 14 16 18 20 22 4 6 8 10 12 14 16 18 20 22 4 6 8 10 12 14 16 18 20 22

(Permutation of 11 from 22 with no two matches taken in consecutive order = 12).

in consecutive order = 12).

To explain a little more on the mechanics of this plan I would like to look at a highly possible sequence of results. For the purpose of showing the points, the outcome of 22 matches on the Socceptools could be something like the following:

lowing: 13211313131113112313132311

You will note that from this sequence it is possible to tract eight score draws where none of them fall consecutively: 3 - - 3 - 3 - 3 - 3 - 3 - 3 - -

A sequence such as this would fall in the last of the tample entries.

The non-consecurive pairs of matches only apply from the 22 selections. Once we have grouped these into our 12 system entries — each entry becomes a full permutation of eight from 11. It doesn't matter then whether the score draws fall consecutively or otherwise — each score draw will count.

This planned entry will cover 12x165 = 1.980 lines.

A full permutation of eight from 22 = 319,770 lines.

A permutation of eight from 22 with no two matches taken in consecutive order =6.435 lines. When I pointed out earlier that his plan would provide a fair ower —I think you would agree that this is a reasonable view. Perhaps this will also serve as an insight into the involvement when tackling a large number of matches.

If you would like to try this plan I have left a blank line in the diagram for your selections.

With eight score draws in any one of the 12 system entires — a first dividend would be assured.

 If there are 9 or 10 score draws anywhere among the 22 matches — there would be a good chance of scooping some minor prizes.

Until next week, good luck and good punting.

Fooscay J.U.S.T. has gained a fine goelkeeper in Steve Potter, who played almost 200 games for Swansea in England, but now Dennis Boland wants a trans-

Boland, one of the best government a transfer.

Boland, one of the best government betweepers in the Philips League over the past two seasons, is not willing to take the chance of having to sit on the bench as Potter's understudy so he has asked J.U.S.T. to release him. Clubs interested in signing Boland, who played for Hakoah (Vic.). Albion Rovers (Vic.) and Yomiuri (Japan) before joining Footscray, should contact Tony Kovac (94-1942).

Potter made three excellent

Potter made three excellent saves in the match against Fitzroy two from shots by Gary Cole and one from a free kick by Branko Buljevic.

'Shiners shock

Sunahine City shocked Footscray J.U.S.T. by holding footscray J.U.S.T. by holding control of the control of the second half, and played brillantly there

On all the players' current form, build seem best placed at left back. If he plays on the wing, Cirkovic would have to choose between two undesirable alternatives.

1. Drop either Ristovski or Palinkas, who have both been playing in top form in attack, to make room for Luigt...

2. Switch to a 4-2-4 formation which leaves the team vulnerable in midfield.
